Flue-Cured TobaccoVariety Disc. Program

A variety discount program on flue-cured tobacco, similar to that in effect the past two years, again will be in operation on the 1959 crop, the U .S .Department of Agriculture has announced.

This means that growers found to be producing flue-cured varieties classified as "undesirable" will be issued "limited support" marketing cards and that the support price for such varieties will be reduced to half the normal rate.

The Department has named Coker 139, Coker 140, and Dixie Bright 244 again as the varieties to be discounted in 1959. Growers interested in full price support are cautioned to take all possible precautions to prevent unknowingly planting one of these discount varieties. This is especially true if plants are obtained from sources other than their own plant beds.

As in past years the variety identification program will be carried out by trained specialists, working under the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) county offices. Variety identification will be made by field inspection.

With the variety discount program in effect for the third successive year, W .D. Hix, III, the ASC county chairman said that he expected that very little if any of the discount varieties would be planted by producers. Nevertheless, he added, that all farmers interested in full price support should make certain to plant acceptable varieties in 1959. By being alert now, farmers may avoid unknowingly planting tobacco that will be subject to reduction in price support.

Play safe — drive carefully.
